Title: Senior Full-Stack Developer

Location: Halifax, Nova Scotia

Skills: Experience with Node.js, React, strong grasp of relational and NoSQL databases, expertise in one or more web MVC frameworks (ExpressJS, Django, Ruby on Rails, etc), Integrations experience with REST, HTTP/HTTPS protocols, and 3rd party APIs, experience running unit tests

Bonus: Firebase/Firestore, Algolia, CircleCI, Docker, Blockchain, machine learning, and statistics

Responsibilities: Creating a proprietary matching system between hosts and artists, based on preferences logged in profiles (currently housed in Podio), an internal booking system that pulls info from internal profiles and transfers information to Stripe (currently partially operating) and ticketing system + customer communication (currently partially operating). Front-end UX development for simple use for self-booking and back-end data collection and management for internal team.

Company Description:

Side Door is using tech to bring people together offline for real human tactile experiences. The premise is that any space can be a venue so long as there's a motivated host. Music, dance, comedy, improv, lectures, film screenings - you name it. We connect hosts and artists (like Tinder), facilitate the booking and manage the ticketing. By trimming the overhead of touring, even emerging artists can make a living at their craft, circumventing and disrupting the gatekeepers of the entertainment industry in an exciting direct-to-audience gigging economy. Cultural connectors in towns large and small can bring the arts to their local friends and community, fostering magical intimate experiences.

Who are we?

Side Door was founded by Halifax based music industry professional & long-time house concert host Laura Simpson and JUNO Award winning songwriter and record artist Dan Mangan. We are now have four full-time staff who are passionate about culture and community, and the importance of cultivating experiences that make people feel connected. We are excited about the future of tech and how it can open up unforeseen opportunities for creative people. We are enthusiastic, optimistic, and fiercely ambitious about what is possible worldwide with Side Door.

Who are you?

5+ years of professional software development experience. Someone who thrives on being a part of a team that believes wide-scale cultural shift can occur through the power of tech, community and art. Side Door is looking for someone who cares about solving pain points at every angle of the live entertainment industry. We are looking for an experienced and capable individual with lots of enthusiasm and passion for the arts and culture. We need someone who collaborates well, who can lead a team and be self-motivated to take a grand idea and bring it to life.
